Cost analysis of patients undergoing primary hip and knee replacement surgery: results of a Singapore health care administrative data base. To examine the cost of primary hip and knee replacement surgery on our patients in Singapore and to compare our results with other published results from the West. The 1993-1997 National Health Insurance claims of 110,196 patients who underwent primary total hip replacement (THR) or primary total knee replacement (TKR) were analysed. Claims-based cost was extrapolated from the actual reimbursement cost. The cost of primary THR and primary TKR in Singapore was about $10,000 higher than the average for Australia, the United Kingdom and the United States. The cost of primary hip replacement is higher than knee replacement. TKR is less expensive than THR, but patients need to be offered THA as the preferred choice for knee replacement, and TKA as the first choice for hip replacement. The Guardian's Lee Smith: Big oil dominates politics (Comment) Lee Smith exposes the way fossil fuel industries, along with rightwing thinktanks, have shaped the debate about climate change. He also reveals how the White House's new "We Can't Wait" report, which makes clear the dangers of not reducing carbon emissions, has gone out of its way to avoid acknowledging the role of oil companies. Smith makes two important points in his piece. First, he says, what we get from oil, coal, gas and nuclear power in the UK is the worst of all worlds: dirty energy but the money from it has gone to the Tories. With just a few (out) exceptions, this party is either (a) unswervingly committed to the cheapest and dirtiest form of energy known to mankind or (b) unquestioningly or anti-environmental. Either way, it is politically and morally bankrupt. He says: None of our political parties could quite make up its mind about whether to put up more windmills or keep on burning fossil fuels, or whether to build dirty polluting power stations or expand the grid so people can use energy where they live. Yes, but we in the UK have much more political choice than most people in the UK. This party [the Labour Party] stands for an economic policy that would get rid
